Tistis is a dive site that offers more than just an underwater adventure; it's a transformative experience. The 32°C water guarantees you'll encounter some of the thriving marine life the Red Sea has to offer. Of note at this site is the array of soft corals, with wire corals being the standout marine life highlight. During your 50-minute dive, you'll have the opportunity to get up close with these underwater wonders.

But what truly sets this spot apart is its topography. The dive is situated around an enormous, columnar reef wall, offering 360 degrees of beauty. Crowned by a wide, flat plateau, this reef wall is recommended for advanced and technical divers only. This is largely due to the extremely steep drop-offs and the fact that the current flows in opposite directions around the column.

Although the wall descends to depths of 50m, the recommended depth for this route is around 40m. However, thanks to these magnificent drop-offs, this site is also a spectacular playground for freedivers.

With visibility of more than 20m, all divers braving these waters will have a clear view of their surroundings, no matter the depths they reach. The medium current adds an exciting layer of challenge .....
